Community Outreach Programs

Travis' Pantry is one of two signature community outreach programs of the Blocking Out Hunger Foundation. Through the program, the Foundation installs branded food pantries in Title I schools in Dallas to provide nutritional, nonperishable food items for food-insecure students. The students can bring meals home on weeknights and weekends, allowing for more nutrition in their diet.

The Blocking Out Hunger Foundation has unveiled Travis' Pantries at Trinity Basin Preparatory School and Dr. Linda Henrie Elementary School with several more on the way.

Nourish2Flourish is the second of two ongoing outreach programs of the Blocking Out Hunger Foundation. Many students in Dallas rely on their school lunches for their daily meals, so when the schools close their doors for extended breaks, these students are forced to go without food. Through Nourish2Flourish, the Foundation partners with nonprofit Sharing Life to provide boxes of meals each week to the students during Summer, Winter and Spring breaks.

Through Nourish2Flourish, more than 2,000 students have received ongoing meals through the program since 2017.
